Radius Packaging Named 2023 Plastics News Processor of the Year Finalist

NEW BERLIN, Wisconsin, January 15, 2024—

Radius Packaging is thrilled to announce its nomination as a Plastics News Processor of the Year finalist for the second consecutive year. The selection process involved a comprehensive evaluation of applicants based on technological innovation, environmental performance, quality data, financial performance, customer and member relations, and public service. Radius emerged as one of the standout nominees, showcasing excellence across all seven categories.

Plastics News commends Radius for its outstanding initiatives, including a range of recognition and training programs, internships, and apprenticeships offered to local students. Sustainability remains a strength as well, as the company is far along in tracking its carbon footprint and helping customers transition to sustainable materials, including post-consumer resins.

Radius, along with the other finalists, will be celebrated at the upcoming Plastics News Executive Forum scheduled for March 11-13, 2024 in Clearwater Beach, FL. The highly anticipated event will culminate with the announcement of the Processor of the Year, marking the 29th recipient in the history of this esteemed award. Radius is honored to be part of this distinguished group.
